

FACULTY ORIENTATION PROGRAM

ANNUAL AWARENESS PROGRAMMES ON CODE OF CONDUCT

Date-16/09/2022 Venue-LDV Block

Objective:

The objective of the Faculty Orientation Program was to provide new faculty members with essential information, resources, and support to facilitate their successful transition into their roles within the institution. The program aimed to familiarize new faculty with institutional policies, procedures, and expectations, as well as to introduce them to the mission, vision, and values of the organization. Additionally, the orientation program aimed to foster a sense of community and belonging among new faculty members and to equip them with the knowledge and tools necessary to excel in their academic and professional endeavors.

Report:

The Faculty Orientation Program was conducted on 16/09/2023. The program consisted of a comprehensive schedule of orientation sessions, workshops, meetings, and activities designed to introduce new faculty members to various aspects of the institution and their roles within it. The sessions covered a wide range of topics, including:

Introduction to the Institution: Overview of the institution's history, mission, vision, values, organizational structure, and strategic priorities.

Policies and Procedures: Review of institutional policies, procedures, and guidelines related to academic affairs, governance, research, ethics, diversity, inclusion, and student affairs.

Academic Programs and Curriculum: Introduction to academic programs, courses, curriculum design, teaching methodologies, assessment practices, and academic support services available to students.

Research and Scholarship: Overview of research opportunities, funding sources, research ethics, intellectual property rights, publication guidelines, and support services for faculty research.

Student Support Services: Introduction to student support services, including advising, counseling, career services, disability support, and academic accommodations.

Technology and Resources: Orientation to campus facilities, technology resources, library services, learning management systems, and other academic resources available to faculty.

Professional Development: Overview of professional development opportunities, faculty mentoring programs, workshops, conferences, and resources for advancing teaching, research, and service activities.

Additionally, the orientation program included opportunities for new faculty members to meet with department chairs, colleagues, administrators, and support staff, as well as to participate in networking events, campus tours, and social activities to facilitate relationship-building and community engagement.

Outcome of the Program:

The Faculty Orientation Program achieved several outcomes:

Increased Awareness and Understanding: New faculty members gained a comprehensive understanding of the institution's mission, vision, values, policies, procedures, and expectations, which will enable them to navigate their roles more effectively and make informed decisions.

Enhanced Integration and Engagement: Participants had the opportunity to connect with colleagues, department chairs, administrators, and support staff, fostering a sense of community, collaboration, and belonging within the institution.

Improved Preparedness and Confidence: New faculty members acquired the knowledge, resources, and support necessary to excel in their academic and professional endeavors, increasing their confidence and preparedness to fulfill their roles effectively.

Facilitated Transition: The orientation program facilitated a smooth transition for new faculty members into their roles within the institution, reducing stress, uncertainty, and adjustment challenges commonly associated with starting a new position.

Promoted Professional Development: Participants were introduced to a wide range of professional development opportunities, resources, and support services available to enhance their teaching, research, scholarship, and service activities.

Overall, the Faculty Orientation Program was successful in achieving its objectives of orienting new faculty members to the institution, fostering community engagement, and facilitating their successful transition into their roles. Participants expressed satisfaction with the program and indicated that they felt well-equipped and supported to begin their academic careers at the institution.

COMMITTEE CONSTITUTED FOR THE CONDUCTION OF ORIENTATION PROGRAM

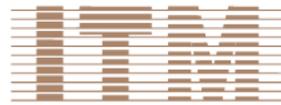

To ensure the successful execution of the orientation programs for newly admitted students at ITM University Gwalior, a dedicated committee has been established. This committee is tasked with the critical responsibility of overseeing all aspects of the orientation process. The primary goal of the committee is to facilitate a seamless and engaging introduction for the incoming students, helping them acclimate to university life and understand the resources and opportunities available to them.

The orientation programs are scheduled to commence on August 17, 2022, and will span several days, each designed to address different facets of student life and academic expectations. The committee's role encompasses a wide range of activities, including the planning and development of the orientation curriculum, logistical coordination for events and sessions, and the organization of various activities aimed at fostering a sense of community among new students.

Key responsibilities of the committee include:

- Program Planning and Development: Crafting a comprehensive and informative agenda that covers essential topics such as academic regulations, campus facilities, student services, and extracurricular opportunities.
- Logistical Coordination: Arranging venues for the orientation sessions, scheduling and managing the use of facilities, coordinating with speakers and facilitators, and ensuring that all necessary resources and materials are available.
- Communication and Outreach: Effectively communicating with newly admitted students to provide them with timely information about the orientation schedule, required preparations, and what they can expect during the program.
- Feedback and Evaluation: Implementing mechanisms to gather feedback from participants regarding the orientation experience and using this information to make improvements for future programs.

The committee's work is crucial in ensuring that the orientation not only runs smoothly but also meets the needs and expectations of the new students, setting a positive tone for their academic journey at ITM University Gwalior.
